SOLD OUT: Thanksgiving at Home

Wednesday, November 27, 2019 - 7:00pm to Thursday, November 28, 2019 - 7:00pm
New Haven, CT

Unfortunately we are no longer accepting registrations for this event as we are at full capacity. Check out our list of other activities happening on Thanksgiving that you can participate in, or ways to have a Thanksgiving celebration of your own!

Each November, the OISS makes special arrangements for interested international students and scholars to join a local family for Thanksgiving dinner. This is one of our favorite traditions, and a great opportunity to experience an American holiday with a local family. Our hosts come from a variety of backgrounds in the Yale community, each with their own set of family traditions.

We do our best to place as many students and scholars as possible, but we cannot guarantee your space until you have been matched with a host and you confirm your attendance with us (details to follow).

By registering for this program, you must be available all day on Thursday, November 28th to be eligible to be placed with a family. Please only sign-up if you are positive that you will be here and can attend.

You will be contacted no later than Friday, November 22nd to confirm that you have been matched with a host family, and further details will be shared at that time.

READ BEFORE REGISTERING:

This program is only open to Yale international students and scholars.
While we do our best to place friends together, we cannot guarantee that it is possible.

Please note that every individual must register separately for the program. If you are a family, please register everyone individually (including children). In the registration there will be a place for you to indicate who you would like to be placed with (for friends and family), and the OISS will be in touch to see what’s possible closer to the program.
While this program is free, many of our hosts live outside of New Haven and might require you to take a train or share an Uber/Lyft to get to their house. When registering, please keep in mind there might be a cost associated with transportation to get to/from your host’s home, but we do our best to keep costs minimal.

If you are registering with children, please keep in mind that our host families aren’t always able to take an entire family for the holiday, but we do our best to find a place for you.

Get ready for some turkey, mashed potatoes, and pumpkin pie!
