O-1 Eligibility Criteria

USCIS requires that your scholarly achievements meet at least three of the eight categories listed below. The requirement is not only to document these achievements but also to be able to demonstrate your achievements are extraordinary with national and international recognition.

O-1: Three of Eight Eligibility Categories

Authorship

Published material written by others

Evidence of authorship of a professional journal or other major media in the field.

Note: It is important to have journals with very high impact factor. USCIS expects publications to be part of normal academic work. One has to prove that it is ‘extraordinary’ with international reputation.

Judge of others

Evidence of participation either on a panel or individually, as a judge of the work of others in the same or a field of specialization.

Note: Includes peer review for academic journals/grant proposals/conference proceedings book/conference selection committee.

Original Scholarly Research Contributions

Evidence of original scientific, scholarly or business-related contributions of major significance in the field.

Note: This includes achievements that do not fit into any other category. Approved Patents, submissions of protein structures in national databases, letters of recommendation, invited talks at conferences, conference posters/abstracts can be used to prove ‘Original Scholarly Research’.

Recipient of Prizes

Evidence of receipt of nationally or internationally recognized prizes or awards for excellence in the field.

Note: This category has very high standards. (e.g.; Fields Medal, Pulitzer prize, MacArthur prize, etc.)

Outstanding Memberships

Evidence of membership in associations in the field for which classification is sought which require outstanding achievements, as judged by recognized national or international reputation.

Note: This includes professional societies or other organizations in the same or a field of specialization.
O-1 Eligibility Criteria

Employment Status

Salary

Note: One good example would be membership in the 'National Academy of Science'. Membership based solely on level of education, years, or annual dues do not meet the required standard.

Employment in a critical or essential capacity for organizations and establishments with a distinguished reputation.

A high salary or other remuneration for services as evidenced by contracts or other reliable evidence.
