O-1 Eligibility Criteria

USCIS requires that your scholarly achievements meet at least three of the eight categories listed below. The requirement is not only to document these achievements but also be able to demonstrate your achievements are extraordinary with national and international recognition.

O-1: Three of Eight Eligibility Categories

Authorship
Evidence of authorship of published material in professional journals or other major media in the field.

Note: It is important to have published material written by others evidence of published material in professional journals or other major trade publications, newspapers or other major media about the beneficiary's work in the field.

Note: This includes not only in the form of 'highlights/editorial/commentary' in premier journals. Citations in book chapters can be used. Demonstrating an abundance of citation in journals or fewer ones in very high impact factored journals can also satisfy this criteria. (Science, Cell, Nature)

Judge of others
Evidence of participation either on a panel or individually, as a judge of the work of others in the same or a field of specialization.

Note: Includes peer review for academic journals/grant proposals/conference proceedings book/conference selection committee.

Original Scholarly Research Contributions
Evidence of original scientific, scholarly or business-related contributions of major significance in the field.

Note: This includes achievements that do not fit into any other category. Approved Patents, submissions of protein structures in national databases, letters of recommendation, invited talks at conferences, conference posters/abstracts can be used to prove 'Original Scholarly Research'.

Recipient of Prizes
Evidence of receipt of nationally or internationally recognized prizes or awards for excellence in the field of endeavor.

Note: This category has very high standards. (e.g.; Fields Medal, Pulitzer prize, MacArthur prize, etc.)

Outstanding Memberships
Evidence of membership in associations in the field for which classification is sought which require outstanding achievements, as judged by recognized national or international standards.
international experts in their field.

Note: One good example would be membership in 'National Academy of Sciences'. Membership based solely on level of education, years of experience or that require annual dues do not meet the required standard.
