Effective January 26, 2021, all air passengers arriving to the U.S. from another country are required to get tested for COVID-19 no more than 3 days before their flight departs and to provide proof of the negative result or documentation of having recovered from COVID-19 to the airline before boarding the flight. This rule applies regardless of vaccination status. For more information on this requirement, see the CDC’s Frequently Asked Questions [1].

Additionally, all travelers entering the U.S. at one of the New York airports will need to complete the Traveler Health Form [2] and present it at the port of entry. If you are traveling directly to Connecticut from the airport, you may do so; if you are planning to spend time in New York, please refer to the New York State COVID-19 Travel Advisory website [3]. If you are entering the U.S. at other locations, please check the requirements of that state (New Jersey [4], Massachusetts [5], Rhode Island [6]).

Before traveling back to Connecticut from winter break, please be sure to review all travel guidelines from Yale [7], Connecticut, your starting destination, and your arrival destination.

Source URL: https://oiss.yale.edu/news/new-cdc-and-ny-state-travel-requirements

Links: