Planning for Fall 2020

On July 24th, ICE/DHS released Clarifying Questions for Fall 2020 [1] with a focus on how new/initial F-1 students could obtain a visa and study in the U.S. While OISS needs to complete a full analysis and get input from Yale’s leadership and our associations, the clarifications seem to bring good news for incoming international students at Yale.

With the recent communication about the Fall semester [2] from President Salovey and Provost Strobel, and your Dean, you may have questions about your status as an international student. Nearly all of you now have your immigration documents (I-20s and DS-2019 forms) and OISS will be providing updated documents if they are needed.

OISS continually updates this page with factual analysis of government guidance. However, there are still several key questions the government has not provided answers to. Please know that both Yale and OISS are committed to supporting you through this difficult period and ensuring that you are able to participate in your academic program this fall, should you choose to do so.

Given the many different programs within Yale, specific questions about enrollment options for the fall semester are best answered by communication directly from your school. For more general information about how Yale will operate in the fall, please refer to these University updates [3].

My I-20

Do I need an updated I-20 with SEVP hybrid remarks?

When the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) rescinded their July 6th guidance and July 7th FAQs, the I-20 re-print requirement ended. Students may use the most recent I-20 they have received from OISS, either electronically or in paper.

Government Miscommunication: Some students have reported that consulates do not know about the most recent guidance which clearly states new I-20s are not necessary. To assist students trying to navigate this transition, OISS is offering a temporary compromise: Incoming students who have a visa appointment before Friday, August 7th should email your designated OISS adviser [4] with the subject line “Time Sensitive: I Have a Visa Appointment Prior to August 7th” and indicate your appointment date and the U.S. Embassy/Consulate where you will have your appointment. Your OISS adviser will respond to you with further guidance and provide supporting documentation.
I have not received my I-20. What should I do?

Be sure that you have submitted all the required financial documentation and that you have completed your OISS New Student Survey in our portal. If you are expecting your I-20 through the SEVIS Transfer process, please note that Yale cannot issue your new I-20 until after the transfer release date set up in SEVIS by your previous school. If you have questions about your document status, please email newstudents.oiss@yale.edu.

Visa Appointment Questions

When will the U.S. consulates open for processing of student visas? Should I apply for a visa?

On July 14th the State Department announced a phased resumption of routine visa services “on a post-by-post basis.” In addition on July 16th the U.S. State Department announced exemptions to the Presidential Proclamations affecting travel from the Schengen region, Ireland and the U.K. Please review all of the Current Travel Restrictions page for additional information.

I have a visa appointment but it is not until after the start of classes, how do I get an earlier appointment?

Some embassies and consulates offer expedited appointment requests, but the instructions are not the same for every location. Most often to request an earlier appointment you must first make an appointment and then request an expedite. The reason for an expedite would be that you have no control over the start of classes and must be on time. It also may be helpful to download and print this OISS letter which addresses the Fall 2020 semester. Normal visa wait times are available on the U.S. Dept of State’s visa appointment page, and you should contact your local embassy or consulate for details on making an expedite request.

Can OISS or my school write a letter to prove that I need to be on campus by August to help me get a faster visa appointment?

Stay tuned and we will post additional information shortly about this. In the meantime, you can use the Yale announcements about the Fall semester as evidence of the fall opening.

My visa appointment was canceled, what should I do?

Appointments are being canceled based on local embassy decisions, often because U.S. consular staff are not in place and/or the COVID-19 conditions in-country. If your appointment is cancelled please notify your OISS adviser.

Travel and Arrival in New Haven

If I have a valid F-1 or J-1 visa, can I travel to the U.S.?

If you have a valid visa, you may use that visa to enter the U.S. with your Yale I-20 or DS-2019 (see below for important start date reminders). However, you still need to consider existing travel bans and evolving travel restrictions, as well as your personal situation before deciding if travel is right for you. When making travel plans... review your flights and remember that even if you start from a non-travel ban country, a layover in a country that is covered by a travel ban will likely prevent you from being admitted to the U.S.

What do I do if I cannot arrive by the start dates on my I-20 or DS-2019 form?

Regulations require that F-1 students arrive in the U.S. no later than the Start of Classes date listed on your I-20. If you will be traveling to Yale after this date, your I-20 or DS-2019 will need to be amended with a new start date. Amendments do not cancel your visa or SEVIS ID, they only change information in your record which is then printed on a new I-20 or DS-2019. Please contact your OISS adviser [4] so that we can send you a new amended Form I-20 or DS-2019.

Can I travel to a country which is not under a travel ban and then travel to the U.S. after 14 days?

You may want to research this option [12], but given the constantly changing dynamics there are risks.

Deferring the Start of Your Program

If I defer my enrollment to Fall 2021 who should I notify?

If you decide to defer your enrollment, please let both your school and OISS know so we can stay updated on your enrollment plans. Depending on the length of the deferral, OISS will either issue an I-20 for the new date (January 2021) or cancel your current SEVIS record and issue you a new I-20 for the Fall 2021.

SEVIS Transfer Students

What if I am already in the U.S. on an F-1 or J-1 visa that I am transferring to Yale?

If you are in the U.S. now, OISS does not advise any international travel prior to the start of classes. Once you have your Yale Transfer-Pending document you are ready to relocate to New Haven. Please get in touch with your OISS adviser [4] about the steps to register your SEVIS record upon arrival at Yale.

What if I have a Transfer-Pending I-20 but I am outside the U.S. and cannot travel to New Haven?

We are awaiting guidance from the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) on how to handle Transfer-Pending records if the student cannot return to the U.S. Please get in touch with your OISS adviser [4] about your record status and options for maintaining status until you are able to arrive at Yale.

Enrolling in Class if my Travel is Delayed

OISS is still awaiting guidance from the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) on how to handle the immigration records if you are required to start your program abroad due to travel or visa delays. This includes questions of eligibility for Optional Practical Training (OPT) for one-year programs or Curricular Practical Training (CPT) for two-year degree programs. We will update this section when we have detailed guidance.

I will have to start the semester online from my home country, can I still receive my Financial Aid or scholarship?

Questions about financial aid and Yale scholarships will be answered by your Yale school.

Change of Status Students

I am now in the U.S. on another non-immigrant status (H-1B, TN, etc.). What should I do?

Please review the information on the OISS website [13] and get in touch with your OISS adviser [4] immediately.

Your course of action depends on many variables, and your adviser can help outline the issues.

I filed a Change of Status request with USCIS, but the processing time may be 5-8 months, will I be able to enroll in classes?

A pending Change of Status request can sometimes permit class enrollment, but it is crucial that you are able to maintain your underlying (most recent) status until the request is approved. If a change of status to B1/B2 is approved but your student status is not, you are unable to enroll while in a tourist status. As the Fall semester begins you should contact your OISS adviser [4] for more detailed instructions.

Getting Help from OISS

Who do I contact at OISS if I have questions?

You may either contact your OISS adviser [14] or send an email to newstudents.oiss@yale.edu [15]. We know this is a stressful time for you and that you are eager for answers. We are working as fast we can to answer your emails and will get back to you as soon as we can. Keep checking this site for updates.
